This Risk Disclosure Policy explains what you need to know about the products the Company can offer you. It is designed to provide you with the information you need to determine whether the products the Company offers are appropriate for your personal objectives, financial situation and needs, by explaining the risks, rights and obligations associated with our products.

All Clients and prospective Clients should read carefully the following risk disclosures and warnings contained in this Police, before applying to the Company for a Trading Account and before they begin to trade with the Company. However, it is noted that this document cannot and does not disclose or explain all of the risks and other significant aspects involved in dealing in the Financial Instruments offered by the Company. This notice was designed to explain in general terms the nature of the risks involved when dealing in Financial Instruments on a fair and non-misleading basis.

2. Risk warning

The Company does not provide you with investment advice relating to its services, securities and other leveraged products and does not make investment recommendations of any kind. The Company may sometimes provide factual information or research recommendations about a market, information about transaction procedures and information about the potential risks involved and how those risks may be minimized. However, any decision to use the Company’s investment products or services is solely made by you.

The Company does not and cannot guarantee the initial capital of your portfolio or its value at any time or any money invested in any security. You acknowledge and accept that, regardless of any information which may be offered by the Company, the value of the securities provided by the Company may fluctuate downwards or upwards and it is even probable that the investment may become of no value.

3. Third Party Risks

It is understood that the Company will promptly place any Client money it receives into one or more segregated account(s) (denoted as ‘clients’ accounts’) with financial institutions such as a credit institution or a bank. Although the Company shall exercise due skill, care and diligence in the selection of the financial institution according to Applicable Regulations, it is understood that there are circumstances beyond the control of the Company and hence the Company does not accept any liability or responsibility for any resulting losses to the Client as a result of the insolvency or any other analogous proceedings or failure of the financial institution where Client money will be held.

It is understood that the legal and regulatory regime applying to any such financial institution will be different from the regulatory regime of your home country. Hence, in the event of insolvency or any other equivalent failure or preceding of that person, the Client’s money may be treated differently from the treatment which would apply if the money was held in Segregated Account in his home country.

The financial institution to which the Company will pass Client money may hold it in an omnibus account. Hence, in the event of the insolvency or any other analogous proceedings in relation to that financial institution, the Company may only have an unsecured claim against the financial institution on behalf of the Client, and the Client will be exposed to the risk that the money received by the Company from the financial institution is insufficient to satisfy the claims of the Client.

4.Leverage

Investing in derivative securities entails the use of “gearing” or “leverage”. In considering whether to engage in this form of investment, you should be aware that the high degree of “gearing” or “leverage” is a particular feature of derivative securities. This stems from the margining system applicable to such trades, which generally involves a comparatively modest deposit or margin in terms of the overall contract value, so that a relatively small movement in the underlying market can have a disproportionately dramatic effect on your trade. If the underlying market movement is in your favor, you may achieve a good profit, but an equally small adverse market movement may quickly result in the loss of your entire deposit.

You must not purchase derivative securities unless you are willing to take on the risks of losing all the money which you have invested.

5.Margin

Clients are required to deposit a Margin with the Company in order to open a position. The Margin requirement will depend on the underlying instrument of the derivative securities, level of leverage chosen and the value of position to be established. The Company will not notify the Client for any Margin Call to sustain a loss-making position. The Company has the discretionary right to start closing positions when the Margin Level decreases to about 50%, and automatically close all positions at market prices if Margin Level drops below 20%.

It is your responsibility to monitor your account. Should the net value of the account (cash plus running profits minus running losses) fall below the margin required, we may close some or all of your trades at the current market price. This should not, however, be taken as a guarantee, and it is your responsibility to ensure that sufficient funds are in your account at all times.

6.Technical risks

The Client may suffer financial losses caused by the materialization of the above risks, the Company accepts no responsibility or liability in the case of such a risk materializing and the Client shall be responsible for all related losses he may suffer, to the extent that these are not owed to the Company's gross negligence or willful default.

7. Market risks
